

Abstract

The invention relates to a method to manufacture components or semi-finished parts for gas turbines, in particular for aircraft engines, preferably by casting.

According to the invention, a smelting crucible that is manufactured of boron nitride is used (Fig. 1).